IF AN ISSUE FEE HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN PAID IN THIS APPLICATION (AS SHOWN ABOVE), THE RETURN OF PART B OF THIS FORM WILL BE CONSIDERED A REQUEST TO REAPPLY THE PREVIOUSLY PAID ISSUE FEE TOWARD THE ISSUE FEE NOW DUE.

HOW TO REPLY TO THIS NOTICE:

If the SMALL ENTITY is shown as YES, verify your current SMALL ENTITY status:

A. If the status is the same, pay the TOTAL FEE(S) DUE shown above.

B. If the status above is to be removed, check box 5b on Part B - Fee(s) Transmittal and pay the PUBLICATION FEE (if required) and twice the amount of the ISSUE FEE shown above, or

If the SMALL ENTITY is shown as NO:

A. Pay TOTAL FEE(S) DUE shown above, or

DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1 to 18, 21, and 22 are allowed.

REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The independent claims cite a first set of modular units and a second set of modular units. These sets of modular units are essentially teams in a game playing in the cited game space. The game space pertains to the relative physical locations of the players' modular units, and includes a size and shape of a play field. The applicants have put the limitations of determining the size and layout of a play field into the independent claims. These limitations tie to the number of modular units to determine the type of game being played and thus the size and shape of the virtual game field. Para. 76 of the specification, 2005/0288100 A1, discusses the type of game, in this case soccer, being determined by the number of modular units connected, two teams of eleven modular units. Para. 87 talks about the relative locations of the respective units being tied to the type of game being played. Paras. 40, 90, and 112 discuss additional modular units changing the size and shape of the playfield, allowing new types of games to be played. The independent claims cite how the number of modular units detected and connected determine the type of game that could be played, and thus the size and shape of the virtual playfield. How the type of game being played, along with its playfield's shape and size, is determined by the number and relative locations of the modular units at any given time.

3. The applicants' specification is essentially virtual pickup ball, except played with wireless modular units. In pickup ball, players come and go throughout the afternoon (which is the cumulative crux of the applicants' invention), and teams are formed and reformed, until at the end of the afternoon everybody has gone home, after the number of remaining players has tricked off for awhile. Even the types of games being played will change as players come and go from pickup games. More players, say will be needed for regulation basketball with five players on each team, and fewer for one-on-one basketball. Football or soccer would require eleven players per team. Baseball would have nine per team, and volleyball would require six per team. The independent claims do not cite a dynamic determination of the number of detected modular units, but such structures as cited in the independent claims will necessarily know the number of detected modular units, as the system does know which units are assigned to which teams (sets of modular units). Kagan, et al. (U.S. patent 5,618,045 A) discloses an ad-hoc wireless network forming a virtual game space or play field. Kagan does not correspond the players' respective locations in virtual space to their respective actual locations. Kagan also does not define a size and shape of a play field, which is static. Sharma (U.S. patent 6,287,200 B1) describes a wireless ad-hoc network of gaming devices, which corresponds the players' virtual locations to their actual locations. Sharma assigns players to teams. Sharma does not discuss determining a play field size or location. The play field is static in Sharma's main volleyball embodiment.

Sharma at 3:35 discloses that the system can be used for games other than virtual volleyball, but there is no dynamic determination of playfield size and shape. The examiner respects that the applicants may have different reasons for allowance.

Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because the abstract is over 150 words. The abstract should also be directed to the scope of the independent claims as currently amended, especially the assignment of a first plurality of units to a first team, the assignment of a second plurality of units to a second team, and the automatic determination of the size and shape of the virtual playing field based on the kind of game currently being played. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Conclusion

4. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
